YOUR SUPER NEWSLETTER OCTOBER 2020

Thank you to everyone who participated in the recent survey focused on communications and services available to members. A summary of the results are included below, along with the winner from the prize draw.

It is pleasing to see that although the country returned to varying levels of lockdown in August, New Zealand share markets have continued their positive upward trend. More on the financial markets is included in this newsletter.

Helpline can be reached on 0800 355 900 between 9am and 7pm Monday to Friday to answer any questions about your member statement and annual report, your accounts, or this newsletter.

GAZE INTO THE FUTURE - YOUR PERSONALISED MEMBER STATEMENT IS OUT NOW.

Ever wanted to take a look at what your future looks like? No one has a magic ball to gaze into the future, however we have the next best thing. Included within your personalised member statement this year is a section on projections, where (based on the assumptions published in the annual report) you can see what your future retirement savings may look like. This can help you gauge whether you're on track to the retirement savings lifestyle you want, or may wish to consider making changes to your savings strategy to help you get there.

*Projected balances are based on a number of assumptions and are estimates only. They are intended to help you consider whether you are on track to meet your savings goals, and are not guaranteed. A list of assumptions is published within the annual report.

SURVEY RESULTS

As Trustees, we love receiving your feedback as this helps us improve the Scheme's services and our communication with you. We recently invited all members to share their feedback with us, and would like to thank everyone who took time to participate in the survey. Thank you!

Everyone who completed the survey went into the draw to win a $200 Prezzy Card.

Congratulations to Catharine Wang from Waikato for winning this prize draw!

IMPORTANCE OF HAVING A WILL

An up-to-date Will is a central part of the estate planning process. A Will is a legal document which formally spells out who will receive your assets or your 'estate' in the event of your death. Do you have a Will? If so, is it up-to-date and does it reflect your current situation? Perhaps your financial or personal circumstances changed since you signed it.

If you don't have a Will, you can get one drawn up by a trustee corporation or a lawyer, or by preparing one yourself using a write-your-own-Will toolkit purchased from a book retailer or an online Will service. If writing your own, you may wish to have it checked by a lawyer to ensure everything is in order. You can find out more about Wills by visiting

NOW WE'RE TALKING - MONEY WEEK 2020

COVID-19 has landed many of us in the same boat with money worries, and are seeking a safe, trusted place to get our money questions answered. Sorted's Money Week 2020 campaign 'Just wondering' launched to reflect the explosion of questions about money we've seen during this time of change and uncertainty. INVESTMENT NEWS

Heightened market volatility experienced earlier this year due to the rise of COVID-19 subsided across July and August, with global share markets achieving positive returns for both months. Supportive monetary policies, including low interest rates and the wage subsidy scheme, helped support households and businesses during periods of lockdown, and as restrictions eased production of goods and services gradually increased.

Strong performance in US tech shares resulted in the share market returning +6.3% (in local currency terms) in August. Commodities such as Crude Oil, Copper and Iron also had a broadly positive month, as an increase in manufacturing output helped industrial metal prices to recover.

Although global share markets were positive in August, Australia officially entered into a technical recession on the basis they had two consecutive quarters of declining economic growth for the first time since 1991.

The ongoing impact of the global pandemic is still being felt, with worldwide COVID-19 cases topping 33 million people by the end of September. A 'second wave' of confirmed COVID-19 cases was experienced in various countries around the world during September. Combined with the uncertainty of both the US and NZ political elections, global financial markets fell during the month of September by -2.9%.

New Zealand's share market also lost ground in September with the NZX50 down -1.4%, with notable price weakness in index heavyweight a2 milk. The Reserve Bank of New Zealand continued its commitment to prolong monetary support to help sustain the New Zealand economy.

The outlook for 2020 remains highly uncertain, and depends almost entirely on the path of COVID-19. It is important to remember that saving for retirement is a long-term task and that previous market downturns (such as the Global Financial Crisis in 2008) have generally been followed by sustained periods of positive returns.

The Fund's long-term returns remain positive, and are shown below.

INTEREST RATES

Interest rates in New Zealand and around the world are exceptionally low, and have just recently gone lower. They are the lowest they have ever been in New Zealand. This low interest rate environment we are in is positive for borrowers, like those with mortgages, however not so great for savers or investors. The Reserve Bank of New Zealand (RBNZ) have a mandate of controlling inflation and supporting full employment. One of the tools they have to do this is setting the Official Cash Rate (OCR), which influences short-term interest rates such as the 90-day bank bill rate and cash investments, as well as long-term interest rates and the foreign exchange rate.

When things aren't going well, the RBNZ will cut the OCR, which will make it easier for people and companies to borrow. This may mean people have more disposable income to spend, and companies are more likely to hire people, which is a positive cycle to help the overall economy function. The opposite happens when things are going too fast and inflation might be a concern, the RBNZ will increase the OCR to slow things down to a manageable pace.

The RBNZ has signalled that negative interest rates are a possibility and for those that are investing for the immediate future, cash may still be the best option. While it will not generate much of a return, it will still provide the stability and lower risk profile than the other Funds. However once tax and fees are taken into account, the return you get in your account (the Cash Fund mainly) may be close to zero or even slightly negative.
